THE PROGRESSION OF SIN By Joe R. Price

In Romans 1:18-32, the inspired apostle Paul describes the progression of sin among the Gentiles, which put them under the wrath of God. Sin always does that, you know. Sin always places one under God's wrath, and it will certainly "increase to more ungodliness" until and unless one repents of it (Rom. 2:1-5; 2 Tim. 2:16; Luke 13:1-5). The Gentile world, as depicted in Romans 1, is a sobering reminder of sin's furious and soul-destroying nature.

The evidence that universally exists of God's eternal power and deity removes every vestige of excuse for those who ignore God and indulge in their sin (Rom. 1:20). Not only has God revealed Himself in His creation, but He has also revealed Himself through His word of truth (Rom. 1:16-19). Yet, people often refuse the evidence of God's power and presence, choosing instead to sin against the will of the Almighty. The destructive power of sin takes over in the sinner's life because he has chosen not to acknowledge and obey God (Rom. 1:21). Look closely at the progression of these sins among the Gentiles and see that things have not changed to this present hour (Rom. 1:18-32). The progression of sin will always happen when we refuse to honor God and obey His will. Observe the progression of sin:

(1) People choose to disregard God and to live in unrighteousness. As a result, sin begins to occupy the prominent place in one's life (Rom. 1:18-20).

(2) The sinner stops worshipping and thanking God. His foolish heart is darkened, and it only produces futile thoughts concerning life (Rom. 1:21).

(3) The sinner turns to human wisdom, but that invariably changes the glory of God into profane things. Man becomes an idolater, worshiping his own creations instead of the true and living God (Rom. 1:22-23).

(4) Instead of following the truth of God, the sinner follows the lying lusts of his heart that produce more shameful uncleanness (Rom. 1:24-25).

(5) Sin continues to consume the sinner, leading him into shameful, vile, and unnatural passions (Rom. 1:26-28).

(6) As the sinner refuses to retain God in his knowledge (refusing to be guided by a knowledge of God), his life is filled with all sorts of unrighteous thoughts and deeds (Rom. 1:28-31).

(7) The person who lives in sin instead of repenting is worthy of death (Rom. 1:32).

We will drown in the depths of wickedness and pay the price of spiritual death when we ignore our sins (Rom. 6:23). Sin never turns a person toward God; it always enslaves the soul (2 Pet. 2:19). Because we have sinned, we cannot provide a potent and actual remedy for our sin (Rom. 3:23; Jer. 10:23). Only Jesus Christ can save us from "the wrath to come" (1 Thess. 1:10; Rom. 3:21-26; Acts 4:12). Salvation in Christ is obtained when one believes, repents, and obeys His gospel (Rom. 1:16-17; Matt. 7:21-23; Acts 17:30; Gal. 3:26-27; Heb. 5:9).

The gospel calls us to repent toward God and have faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ (Acts 20:21). Otherwise, in our sins we will move farther away from God (2 Tim. 3:13-14). Choose to obey God instead of living a life that is worthy of death. Do not let sin destroy your soul.
